My Best Frenemy (Friends for Keeps) By Julie Bowe

Ida May finally fits in at school after becoming best friends with Stacey Merriweather, one of the popular girls. But then Ida's frenemy, bossy Jenna Drews, brings in a game of truth or dare, and all the girls are suddenly daring one another to misbehave. When Ida finds herself in the principal's office, she ends up ratting out her friendsÑwith disastrous consequences. The only way she can fix things is to take a triple-dog dare, but Ida May isn't sure she has the guts. Will her BFF come to her rescue, or is this the perfect job for a frenemy?

Editorial Review

From School Library Journal
Grade 3-5 Fourth-grader Ida May is precariously poised between wanting to be herself an artist who follows the rules and loves her sock monkey and wanting to be accepted by her more sophisticated peers who are into makeup and fashion. Then, a game of truth or dare causes her best friend to turn against her, and everything changes. It falls to frenemy Jenna to remind her that standing up for yourself is braver than going along with the crowd. Like Jeff Kinney's Diary of a Wimpy Kid (Abrams), My Best Frenemy emphasizes the conflict between wanting to do the right thing and wanting to earn popularity. Written in descriptive language (Her words were covered in prickles) that sets the scene and gives readers insight into Ida's confusion and growth, the story is realistic and well told. Wendy E. Dunn, Fort Worth Public Library, TX

From Booklist
Ida May returns in this third book of the Friends for Keeps series, and learns a bitter truth: some friends you'll want to keep at a distance, like those who triple-dog dare you to let another fourth-grader pierce your ears. My Best Frenemy chronicles the confusing way “best” friends can shift in the course of a season, or week, or even a single day. Throughout, Ida is an appealing narrator who, like a maturing Junie B. Jones, skillfully sizes up a situation or person: “She's the prettiest girl in my class. . . . She's also tall. And kind of loud. It takes a lot of friends to soak her up.” Grades 3-6. --Abby Nolan
