Editorial Review

Review
"a worthy successor to Bill Bryson's classic book ... A Walk in the Woods...." The VVA Veteran, Vietnam Veterans of America, David Wilson and Marc Leepson

"In all it is a humorously different and surprisingly true picture of two guys trekking over 1,300 miles of fun-filled, gut-wrenching, awe-inspiring mountainous terrain.... With Albert Dragon we climb mountains, walk within hailing distances of bears, overnight in a tent with jagged lightning bolts crashing all around us, tour on an adventure of a lifetime...." Mainline Times, Ralph Collier. Collier is a member of Society of American Travel Writers, the International Food, Wine and Travel Writers Association. Heard on 16 radio stations and through their Web sites worldwide.

"Loving your book! . . . You make the AT come alive."
Janice Saxton

"The book was great and I was sad when I finished it. I wanted to read more. Avalanche and Gorilla Jim is full of short stories that peak your interest, make you laugh, teach you things about the AT and inspire you."
Charles Foster

From the Author
I share with you this adventure of a lifetime. That's why I wrote it in the first person so it would be as if we were talking and I am telling you about laugh out loud moments such as being locked in an outhouse when the doorknob fell apart and the goofy things I said when confronted by a rattlesnake.

You feel the excitement of getting rescued in a mountain snow storm. Yes, I revealed startling murders on the Appalachian Trail and our connection to the terrorist who set off a devastating bomb at the Olympic Games in Atlanta.You will also meet unbelievably kind people who restore your faith in humanity.

This is the A.T. with its highs and lows, the exhilaration of climbing to the top of mountains and the struggles of hiking the length of the US. Each year two to three million people hike on the Appalachian Trail. Find out what is the fierce attraction and enjoy it--even if you never leave your easy chair.
